

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, my gratitude and thanks goes to the Blessed One, Lord our God, King of the Universe and Creator of us all, for giving me the privilege and power to study and write this book in Competitive Intelligence.

My acknowledgements are genuine and sincere. I convey my appreciation and heartfelt thanks for the contributions made by those whose names are mentioned and by those whose names cannot be mentioned because of limited space.

Tsungirirai, my wife, is a constant inspiration and source of encouragement. Tsungirirai, your belief in me is only rivaled by my love for you – it is a privilege to be walking down life's path together with you. Thank you for being there for our daughter, Channah, during the time I wasn't around. My wife, Tsungirirai, has spent countless hours editing and critiquing my writing, and has made me a substantially better writer. For that and much more, I thank her profusely.

I would like to gratefully acknowledge the help and valuable support of the following people: my mentor Professor A. Davis, Professor N. Sewdass, Dr S. Mashingaidze, Mr S. Leeb, and Dr A. Barnea. I am grateful also to Ms S. Megan, Mr A. Chikomo and Ms L. Brown, the University of South Africa (UNISA) Librarians, who were always ready to provide information or advice when needed about any Competitive Intelligence topic.

Many thanks go to Professor Alexander Kostyuk, the director and editor-in-chief at Virtus Interpress, for your input and faith in this project. Thanks to Dr Y. Mozghovyi, senior assistant to the director and editor-in-chief at Virtus Interpress, who copyedited the entire manuscript and for the devotion throughout the editing process.

I would also like to acknowledge my wonderful little daughter, Channah, who reminds me each day of the abundant blessing that is life itself.

Thanks also go to my uncle Professor B.R.S. Chivore for the inspiration and encouragement. You played an important role in my life.

Finally, deep thanks and appreciation go to my late father and mother (Mrs E. Chivore and Mr B. Maune), who taught me the importance of perseverance, hard work, and the joy of following my authentic desire – values and teachings.
